BODY OF H. L. POWLING, DROWNED NEAR GILL LAST SUNDAY WAS NOT RECOVERED TILL WEDNESDAY MORNING.

IT IS THOUGHT THE VICTIM WAS STRUCK BY A BLADE OF ONE OF THE WHIRLING PROPELLERS WHEN THE TINY CRAFT CAPSIZED.

Deceased Had Lived and Worked in Northfield a Number of Years Before Going to Greenfield and Was Liked by Everybody.

The body of H. L. Powling, drowned on Sunday last in the Connecticut River at Gill, was not recovered until Wednesday morning. The deceased was a resident in Northfield some eleven years before he went to Greenfield to live and work, and his many friends here mourn his loss.

While in Northfield he was employed at Reed's Mill and later at Keet's Garage. He was a splendid mechanic and of an inventive turn of mind.

The accident happened as Powling was trying out his motorboat, which is equipped with an 80 horsepower government airplane engine. The engine is a heavy one and was set high in the boat and when the craft was about in the middle of the river a squall arose and overturned the launch.

The boat was made by Mr. Powling and was unique in many ways. It was about eight feet long and four feet wide. The motor was on the front end and the boat was set low in the water. Jacob C. Rau of Turners Falls, who was on shore, was one of those who saw the boat capsize. Shortly afterwards he could see Powling swimming in the water toward the Northfield side and reach some bushes near the shore after which he was not visible. It was presumed by those who saw him that he had reached land but this proved not to be the case. It is said that the river bed slopes abruptly near this point, the depth of the water ranging from six to 30 feet.

The boat was found floating down stream bottom side up, and suggestion was made that someone dive under it and ascertain whether Powling was caught and held under it in some manner. This plan, however, was not tried owing to the danger, and the boat was finally righted although its weight made the process slow.

Powling and his wife and daughter, Ruth, had been visiting at the camp of Dr. J. I. Erikson, located on the bank of the river nearby. He had had the boat out earlier in the day but at the time of the accident, he had gone to try out the motor, which it is understood was not working satisfactorily.

Mr. Powling was very popular and had been a resident of Greenfield for about 12 years. He was head mechanic at the Bulck garage for a number of years and before that was employed as a machinist at the Weldon garage. Born in South Deerfield in 1881, he spent his early years in that town but later moved to Claremont N. H., where he attended the high school and also learned the machinist trade. He was a prominent athlete and was widely known as a pole vaulter. After leaving Claremont, he went to Northfield where he worked in one of the garages and later came to Greenfield.

He is survived by his wife and daughter, Ruth, two sisters, Mrs. G. G. Casson and Mrs. Frank Butler of North Adams, a brother, P. H. Powling of Wendell, and several step-brothers and sisters.

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Enright, and daughter and two grandsons of New York City, very pleasantly surprised Miss Joyce and Miss Canfield Thursday. They were motoring through and stopped over to spend the day enroute, all going down to Old Deerfield for dinner.

FREE BLEACHERS FOR WOMEN BASEBALL FANS

Phil Porter Mentions An Extra Inducement for Those Who Have Not Yet Sent In Their Subscriptions

My article in your last week's issue regarding bleachers for children netted me $11.00. Will you please make this known for two very good reasons; namely—I wish to thank those who have contributed, and I wish to remind those who have not done so to do so at once. When I say that these bleachers will also include the women fans free, this should have a far more touching appeal.

LAWN FETE AT FITT'S WAS A GREAT SUCCESS

Netted Generous Contribution to both Senior Class and High School Piano Funds.

All will be interested to hear that the Lawn Fete given under the auspices of Mrs. A. P. Pitt on her lawn on Saturday brought in $161, and $150 will be net. This gives a good nucleus toward the Washington trip of the fourteen high school seniors with a generous contribution to Prof. Lawrence for the new piano for the high school also.

The cooperation of all is what brings success, and this spirit was felt in the generous response for food, flowers, entertainment and services. All parts of the town contributed. Rev. Father Carey of Millers Falls, pastor of the local church also being present and assisting. High school seniors and their parents are exceedingly grateful to Mrs. Pitt for her interest which always means practical results and a large amount of labor on her part.

Miss Nancy Lee de Canizares of Wayne, Pa., a friend of Miss Virginia, also took part appearing in festival costume with a guitar.

All the costumes were very beautiful with a large amount of hand work in embroidery, spangles and beads. Mrs. Powell wore one of the gowns of most beauty in color and design. Mrs. DeGore gave and told much of the customs of the people. Her final song was a birthday song, to be sung as a serenade. Begin Installation of New Style Lights

Work was started this morning on putting in the bases for the poles for the new traffic lights at Avenue A and Third Street. The new lights will be a radical change from most of the lights in use in this section and will conform with the new rules promulgated by the State Highway Department.

There will be four lights, one on each corner, and heavy white marks will be painted several feet away from the intersection of the streets. In approaching the intersection, the driver will find his control light on his right, but across the intersection of the streets, instead of at the intersection where he stops his car. This is in conformity with the regulations laid down by the State Highway Department in their attempt to standardize the traffic laws.

The underground wires will be placed shortly and the same work will be done for the lights at the intersection of Third and L Streets. When the work is completed the lights will have to be approved by the State before they can be put into operation.

Superintendent of Streets John E. Sullivan has a crew of men at work on the Avenue repairing the surface of the roadbed which was dug up in laying the underground cable. Several inches of filling is being removed and replaced by crushed rock and tar.

ON-HEADED SPHINXES TO GUARD EMBASSY

Two mysterious looking beasts, part lion and part sphinx, have been slowly taking shape and form under the sculptor's chisel at Bedford, Ind.

Now the secret is out. The great stone figures are to mount guard at the portals of the new British embassy under construction in Washington. Sir Edwin Lutyens is the architect.

Out of a single block of stone the two massive figures were carved, according to officers of the Indiana Limestone company. The block was moved from quarry to the sculptor's hall, where so many artistic designs for outstanding buildings are carved and sculptors were busy on the piece for several weeks.

A glance at these solemn creatures convinces one that twisting the tail of the British lion is no pleasant job.

Laughed one architect as the figures were being packed for shipment.

WILL OLD STURDY TYPE OF AMERICAN FARMER VANISH FROM LAND?

It is amazing! Probably ten to twenty million people know all about the general farming condition of this land (New England is no different from the rest) and yet they read the "apple sauce" in newspapers and magazines and never blink an eye nor utter an incredulous howl.

During the debate in Congress on the question of Farm Relief and the Export Debuture Plan, one of the outstanding speeches was made by Congressman John E. Rankin of Mississippi. Among other things he said:

I traveled through the states of Kentucky and Ohio for three weeks last year—the richest agricultural country in the world. I saw only two houses being built on farms in all those three weeks, and one of them was a filling station. In the state of Ohio I heard a farmer describe the conditions that prevailed there in that beautiful country, thickly populated, and threaded with the very best highways. He said:

Our farms are going to ruin. I came down through what used to be a prosperous old community, the one in which I was reared, and there in one row were three of what had been the best farm houses in this state. They are all vacant now. The fields are uncultivated. I stopped in front of the one with which I was familiar and walked through what had once been the gate.

The barn was falling down, the roof of the house was going to decay, the fields were uncultivated, the garden and the yard had grown up with weeds and brambles. I peeked through a paneless window into the room which was once filled with the best furniture and saw the rats and the mice chasing each other across the vacant floor. From the top of the shade tree in which the birds once sang, and beneath which the children played, one lonely crow looked out over the desolate situation and solemnly croaked his mournful message to his mate.

When he painted that picture he described conditions in the other corn-growing states, in the wheat-growing states, and in the cotton-growing states; the result of the depression brought about by compelling the farmer to sell what he produces in the open market and purchase every thing he buys in a protected market. That is the picture of the conditions on the farm in this so-called "prosperous" country of ours "where wealth accumulates and men decay."

Mr. Rankin's main theme was that unless you give the farmers the same protection as the industrialist (utilizing something like the Debuture Plan for the latter) all farm aid will be only a dole and so unworthy of either a self-respecting nation or a working man.

The crux of the whole matter is that the farmer simply needs a square deal; the same protection that the industrialist gets. . . . To make him the recipient of a charity relief fund, no matter how large nor how small, will eventually strip the farms of their desirable population. That great class from which have come the men and women who have fought the nation's battles in time of war and sustained the country in time of peace, is now being destroyed because of the inequalities that exist between agriculture and industry as a result of the artificial condition produced by our present tariff laws.

SPARKS CIRCUS WILL BE AT GREENFIELD

On Friday, August 2, afternoon and night under huge masses of canvas, Sparks circus will parade and show in Greenfield to make the young folks happy and the old folks young. The greatest street parade is on Friday morning at 11:00 o'clock.

First of all, a real wild animal circus is a 1929 acquisition, having been imported from the world's greatest wild animal training quarters at Stellingham, Germany. Included in these displays will be found lions, leopards, polar and grizzly bears, trained ostriches and zebras, the Sparks' group of "rotation" horses, three elephant herds, fancy gaited and posing horses trained under the guiding hand of Carlos Carreon. Then there is the Bibb County Pig Circus, Sparks' Beals, and hosts of others of a novel nature.

The circus will also introduce the elaborately staged spectacle, "Lily of the Nile," in which all of the animals, performers, premier dancers, and a large chorus participate. Sparks Circus today is the largest in the world still offering a daily street parade and has been tripled in size since its former visit to this section. Excursion rates on all railroads.

Hinsdale-Brattleboro Cement Road is Practically Completed

B. Pirnie and Sons of Ashland, Mass., have just completed building the 20-foot cement roadway, from nearby the Hinsdale Garage, and extending two and one-half miles or more toward Brattleboro. The pouring of cement was finished 14 days ahead of the date specified in the contract.

Although most of the machinery and equipment has been shipped to other points, the detour signs are still up, as some work remains to be done in the way of grading and of laying cement gutters. Work on the gutters was to be started on Tuesday.

With the exception of a small section on the Brattleboro end, the cement slab has been tested and accepted. Traffic to some extent is going over the new roadway, although the contractors prefer that cars use the detour until the grading is finished.

On one day last week the contractors laid a 10-foot strip of cement 1775 feet long, which was the record for this job.

Editorial

THE WORLD WAR MEMORIAL TABLET

Our publication of the list of those who served in the World War from Northfield is producing a lot of criticism and comment which we are passing along as promptly as possible to the committee. As can be understood in a list of this character there seem to be both names omitted as well as names that some do not think should rightly be on it; as well as names mis-spelled or initialed. In our opinion it is going to be a difficult matter to have this list absolutely perfect, as it really should be.

Other communities have solved this basic difficulty by having only general sentiment, such as, "In Memory of Those Men and Women Who Served Their Country in the World War from This Town of Northfield" or something like that, with the dates, perhaps, upon their bronze tablet. With all due deference we beg to offer this suggestion to the committee. Cheerio.

WE ARE QUITE SUCCESSFUL IN KEEPING OUT OF THE IMPORTANT AND PROFITABLE TOURIST BUSINESS

It would be a mighty good thing for Northfield and most of the other towns in our Big Circle Section to maintain some sort of an Information Bureau, during the summer tourist season months at any rate, similar to the one at Keene. Of course some of the knowing ones stop here at the Press office for local information and we try to give it to them to the best of our ability, but there must be hundreds every day these days, who if they saw a little shack on Main Street, with one of our bright girls by the window, would obtain information that might benefit everybody concerned.

Which road to take to get where they want to go and how about road conditions that way? Where to stop for meals or to stay over night and at what rates? Is there an auction or other sale of antiques going on anywhere in the neighborhood? Where is the best and nearest place to stop for a picnic or a swim or a movie or good milk? Is there a haunted house near here and, if so, just where? How about caves, Indian camping spots, scenic beauty spots for sketching or photographing? Any ball games to watch for an hour or so? Nearest golf links?

These are just a few of the questions we have been asked in the past week or two by touring automobilists who knew enough to come to the local newspaper office for their info; but just think of the many others who passed through helpless and unaided, chilled by the utter lack of any "Northfield Welcomes You" signs or any other particular evidence of friendliness or hospitality.

Of course, if we don't want any of this tourist trade (by far the most important industry of New England, during these summer months) we are working along the right lines to keep out of it. Among the thousands who pass through Northfield every day this summer there are quite a few who would stop and spend their money and some of their time here and tell their friends and, perhaps, come here again some time. . . . if there was any visible encouragement or inducement for them so to do. Under existing conditions, of course, they are most apt to keep right on going until they come to somewhere else.

The ones who do stay and neighbor with us mainly through chance contract with our garage men or clerks or storekeepers or Post Office) must be a very small percentage of those who would do so, if they only could be told what they want to know in Northfield; instead of having to wait till they get to Keene or Greenfield or Brattleboro, to find out. . . . when it is late for us to benefit locally.

AS A COMMUNITY THINKETH IN ITS HEART SO IS IT.

A great many human enterprises are largely an attitude of mind; largely the thinking that we can and will do so and so. Much the same is true of a community. Instead of sitting down and idly wishing for industries or something to keep at least a few of our glorious boys and girls with us. . . . let us (each and every reader of this screed can do his or her part, no matter how young or how old they may be) THINK UP AND TALK UP THE FACT THAT NORTHFIELD NEEDS SOME SORT OF PAYING EMPLOYMENT FOR SEVERAL HUNDRED UP AND COMING YOUNG MEN AND YOUNG WOMEN. . . . That is really all that is necessary. . . . Just create a community consciousness among our people that this CAN and WILL BE SECURED.

Once this is done suitable developments in agriculture, industry or in local plants will take place and more and more of our boys and girls and young men and young women find profitable employment in their home town. . . . In other words, when Northfield gets a SUCCESS CONSCIOUSNESS. . . . A BELIEF IN NORTHFIELD. . . . A CONVICTION THAT IT DOES NOT HAVE TO ACCEPT FATE MEELY BUT CAN ACHIEVE AND ACQUIRE. . . . then the things desired will come and the necessity for our boys and girls enriching other communities than their own, will grow less and less.

There is nothing radical nor sensational about this method. It is Biblical as well as logical and philosophical. We believe that teachers, preachers, parents, and almost everybody will attest to its correctness. The only difficulty arises in DOING IT. . . . procrastination, "next week," laziness, pure cussedness, sometimes even selfishness, . . . these and much more mightfully hamper the desired consumation. But if YOU will just DO YOUR PART. . . . THE THING CAN BE DONE. Will YOU? Cheerio.

FISHING

What fun it is to go fishing
On any sunny day,
No matter if you don't catch one,
It's a wholesome kind of play.
What if your pole didn't cost much?
You can have just as much fun
What if your line isn't one of the best?
You're just as apt to catch one.
I've seen a barefoot farmer boy
Catch more fish in a day

With only a willow rod and string
Cut in his hour of play.

Than all the city slickers
All tagged up in their best,
With all their cost and equipment
They tho't they'd catch more than the rest.

So let me recommend to you
A summer day in June,
A dandy brook, and a crooked hook,
And birdies all in tune.

Woods and fields, are full of blossoms gay.
By the winding river, an ever busy stream,
An ideal place to wander, and to dream.

A grey mist rising from o'er the hill,
From the woods, the song of a whippoorwill.
And a pungent odor of balsam and pine,
Oh summer, what a glory is thine!

I know a pool where the black bass lie
Far from man with his hook and fly.
While within the shadows of a dell,
Grow sweet fern and dainty blue-bell.

The sunlight flickers on the ground,
And the shadows deepen, not a sound.
Soon night will come and Nature then
Will sleep in woodland, moor and fen.

SPLENDID WORK OF THE GRANGE EDUCATIONAL AID FUND FOR STUDENTS

Interesting facts from the Grange Educational Aid Fund will be read with much satisfaction by Patrons in all parts of Massachusetts. So far this year the trustees report 38 loans issued to students, with 16 applications now on hand, and it is the expectation of the trustees that fully 100 loans will be called for this year. Receipts for the first six months of 1929 were slightly in excess of $6,200, of which $1440 was contributed from subordinate Granges and $309 from Pomona Granges; $4,479 represents payments of principal and interest by students. Forty-seven students who are beneficiaries of the fund were graduated in June from 32 different educational institutions in seven states. Of these 36 are completing work for their degrees in 13 different colleges, the Massachusetts Agricultural College leading with 12 students. Students are graduating from five of the state normal schools and from four business colleges. Among other schools represented are the Massachusetts School of Arts, Graves' School of Art, Ithaca School of Physical Education, Lowell Textile School, Massachusetts Radio and Telegraph School, Bay Path Business School, and New England Conservatory of Music. Of the 47 graduates this year, 38 are men and 21 women. The secretary is receiving checks from students who are at work in New York, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Tennessee, Iowa and all of the New England States. No better proof of the value of the fund in helping these students to the education for their chosen work could be found than the wide range of work being done by graduates. It would do the hearts of Massachusetts Patrons good to read some of the expressions of gratitude received by the secretary of the fund from students who have shared in its benefits. In the last year the United States tanned 70 per cent of all the goat and kid leather produced in the world. "Life is short—he made it shorter By speeding faster than he oughter."

HERE ARE THE NAMES OF THOSE NORTH-FIELDIANS WHO SERVED THEIR COUNTRY IN THE GREAT WAR

Kindly Go Over the List Carefully and Report Any Errors or Omissions to the Committee on Tablet

The committee appointed by the town of Northfield at the last annual town meeting for the purpose of purchasing and erecting a suitable bronze tablet in memory of those townspeople who served in the World War, have compiled the following list of names eligible for this tablet. It is the wish of the committee that this list be carefully examined by all interested and any errors, particularly in regard to spelling, or omissions of names be reported to them at once. This is a most important matter, owing to the fact that these names will be cast in bronze and no changes can be made after this list is closed, which must be done shortly before August first.

"I've Been Reading"

By WILDER BUELL

"DODSWORTH" by Sinclair Lewis. Harcourt Brace
and Co., pp377, $2.50

How to be happy though married is a problem of perennial interest. But since the war it has become a public as well as a private issue among philosophers, sociologists, social psychologists and other persons whose professions have high sounding names as it has always been ordinary people and those who write romances for a living.
This is probably due to the war. Men are scarce in Europe; they are always scarce in militaristic societies, especially just after a war. And this last outbreak, in which we took part, has drawn the attention of the world to America, among other things to the enviable position of the American woman, living in a society where, for three hundred years, there have been more men than women by several million. The question at issue is as to whether, in America, men may not be paying too high a price for the privilege of a wife, and whether women are giving their fair share in the partnership.

DODSWORTH, by Sinclair Lewis, is a contribution to this controversy. It is the portrait, not so much of Mr.
Dodsworth, American business man, as of his wife, Fran. The story is that Dodsworth, who first begins to get acquainted with his wife when he retires, after twenty years of marriage, is shocked to find that she is not the divine creature, half angel and half child,
that he had supposed her but a vain and egotistical woman with ideas of her own as to what constitutes amusement and the larger life. They set out for a tour of Europe and, while doing all the things that everybody does and saying all the things that everybody says on such a journey, they drift further and further apart until the marriage finally ends in a divorce.

It is a pitiful tale, and, viewed entirely from the standpoint of the man, might be considered a scathing indictment of American womanhood. But Lewis's gift for satire, magnificent when it was directed against one of the hypocrites of the church in Elmer Gantry (a subject that has drawn the fire of satire through the ages) is a little heavy for the picture of a woman.
We get Fran's selfishness and her essential vulgarity but we do not understand her charm. And such women, from Becky Sharp down, always do have charm. And the theme is hackneyed. There is always DAISY MIL-LER. But more especially there is THE CUSTOM OF THE COUNTRY (MAC-MILLAN) by Edith Wharton, published in the early days of the war and more or less lost in the excitement, but by many critics now considered Mrs.
Wharton's masterpiece. This book is the portrait of the same type of woman
that Lewis has pictured in Dodsworth, carrying her ambitions into the European setting in the same manner. But Edith Wharton's "Undine Spragg" is a vital portrait of a living character who will be remembered when Sinclair Lew-is's Fran Dodsworth is forgotten. We hope that Mr. Lewis's next book will give us another one of those portraits of men for which he is justly famous.

Model A Ford Seems To Suit
Europe as Well as America

Winning first and second place in the recent Copenhagen-Paris-Copenhagen, 1440-mile race, the Model A Ford car has again demonstrated to Europe
its endurance, speed and durability.
Details of the performance of the two cars have just reached here. From those accounts it was learned that the car winning first place—a Tudor sedan
not in any way outfitted for racing—already had been driven 23,000 miles
by the owner before the race.

"My car is now as good as ever," said
the owner, Paul Tholstrup, of Roskilde, Denmark, at the conclusion of the race.
"I am ready to drive to Paris again without even giving it a once-over." Eleven cars started the race. Six finished. The most formidable difficulties were encountered. Great stretches of road were deeply rutted and for many miles impassable. For hours the cars had to be driven through fields.
Dense fogs made the night driving extremely hazardous. Many detours added to the difficulties.

Tholstrup said, "No matter how deep
the ruts, or whether, as in one instance,
we had to go into the fields,—in fact,
we just flew over everything. And we did not have one single mishap, aside from a couple of punctures, on the entire trip."

The contest was sponsored by the Danish Motor Union and the well known Danish newspaper "Politiken."

TIT FOR TAT

"I was fair affronted yesterday in the street car."
"How was that?"
"The conductor glowered at me as if I didn't pay my fare."

Life is precious, make it safe.

Helps for the "Summer Bachelor"

THIS summer is the time to surprise your wife. Here's some inside stuff on how to do it.
When she returns from her vacation
expecting to see you worn and wan
from not having enough to eat during her absence, surprise her by showing her a face of glowing health, and pour out a culinary masterpiece which you, yourself, have mixed and cooked. Then observe the expression of awe on her face!

Honest to Goodness

Yes, you're right, it will take practice, but not very much, for here are a couple of recipes which can be followed implicitly—results
guaranteed:

Mexican Baked Beans: Heat a frying pan, put four rashers of bacon in it and fry, turning as necessary to keep from burning. Remove bacon and put on platter to keep hot. Pour off all the fat from the pan except one tablespoon. Add one tablespoon of minced onion and fry gently until a golden brown.

Add half a number 2 can of baked beans and one-half teaspoon of chili powder. Stir until thoroughly heated and add salt and pepper if desired. Serve with the bacon on top. This will serve two people—or one mighty hungry one.

Carrot and Bacon Casserole:
Drain the diced carrots from an eight-ounce can. Arrange them in very small casserole. Sprinkle salt, pepper and paprika over them and then sprinkle about two teaspoons of grated cheese on each. Lastly lay two or three strips of bacon on top of each. Bake in a hot oven until bacon is crisp. This will serve two people, too.

"STARK MAD" AT THE GARDEN THEATRE

"Stark Mad," the Warner Bros. mystery thriller now at the Garden Theatre, though treating jungle madness with a generous admixture of humor, brings to mind the many cases when madness has been used by the great playwrights and story-writers of the world to heighten the dramatic power of their creations.

"Stark Mad," describes the adventures of an exploring party who come to the Central American jungles in search of a lost hunter and his guide. It is the guide who is temporarily mad, but bright caused by unknown things, supernatural "soot" things, "ode Ayeu" doors, flying arrows—and unearthly goings on, drives the travelers to the verge of madness—especially Miss Fleming—gloriously played by Louise Fazenda—whose fears are of the sort to set audiences into uproarious laughter. H. B. Warner and Miss Fazenda are featured with a splendid cast in support.

Curling irons were used by the Romans. Tight hair curlers were not recommended as it is important that the hair should have free ventilation.

CHESTER

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

I don't know what Chester's last name is. I could have found out, but I was not curious enough to inquire. He got on the train at one of the Canadian summer places with an impetuosity and a furor which made us all aware of his coming and he remained with us until we reached Minneapolis. He was a well-dressed and well set-up youngster of ten, I judge, and if he had had any manners or had been taught any sort of self-control he would have been a very likable boy. He was apparently the only child of a prosperous-looking gentleman of sixty and a handsome woman considerably younger. I inferred that there were no other children in the family from the completeness with which he got what he wanted, disobeyed all verbal orders given to him, and disregarded the comfort and the rights of every one on the train.

Father and mother occupied a drawing room at the end of one of the cars but Chester seemed to feel that the whole train was his personal property. While his parents were quietly engaged in a friendly game of bridge with some acquaintances which they had picked up on the way, Chester roamed at large like a wild Texas steer turned loose in a public street. He went tearing up and down the aisles shouting and slamming the doors and tripping over feet and suitcases and paying no attention to anyone. He was quite at home wherever he went.

In the observation car where a number of people were trying to write or to read quietly, Chester moved constantly from one place to another, trying this chair and then that, looking at one magazine and then tossing it aside for another, and all the time he was making a great racket.

"Don't do that, Chester," his mother would occasionally say, but her warning seemed to act more as an incentive to further disturbance than as a deterrent. Chester had not yet learned the sound of his mother's voice. He went on as if nothing had been said to him.

At the table Chester sulked a good deal or ate as if the process were wholly to satisfy his appetite. Generally he did not like what was set before him and made derogatory comments on the menu. Father and mother took little notice of this attitude; they were evidently quite used to it and were neither surprised or shocked.

Chester is the illustration of one sort of modern training of the young. He is being allowed to express his own personality, to develop without restraint. If he learns good manners, or modesty, or self-control, or unselfishness, or regard for other people's comfort or personal rights he will pick these things up himself through experience and hard knocks, and possibly through watching some one else whose example he thinks well of. If I may judge from the way he acted between Seattle and Minneapolis the parental, restraining hand has not yet been laid on him.

Convenience and Safety Combined

Prompt interest payments on Mortgages is a convenience. It is also a sign of safety. For if our debtors are slow about meeting their obligations, we have fears of their ability to do so.

Interest payments on Inter State Mortgages are made the day they come due, not when received by us. Experienced Investors welcome this proof of stability and responsibility, and prefer Inter State Mortgages.
